Code of Ethics

The general duty requires FSC Full Members to act in "the public interest" to establish and maintain a strong ethical foundation for the financial services market.

Accordingly, FSC Full Members must conduct themselves with integrity in a manner consistent with fostering and maintaining a good reputation for their industry and refrain from conduct that may discredit the industry.

The specific ethical duties are to:

- treat all stakeholders with fairness and equity;
- instil trustworthiness by establishing and publishing an ethical framework;
- apply a high standard of conduct, including:
 - performing tasks diligently and respectfully;
 - ensuring appropriate risk and compliance practices;
- manage conflicts of interest; and
- abide by the spirit and letter of the law.

Code of Conduct

FSC's Code of Conduct requires FSC Members to:

- apply all the above tenets of the Code of Ethics;
- compete fairly and appropriately in addition to complying with applicable law;
- provide clear, concise and effective disclosure;
- ensure there are appropriate breach reporting and whistleblowing policies;
- manage conflicts;

- ensure confidentiality and appropriate use of information; and
- promote and support ethical decision-making behaviour through sound corporate governance.
- considering any:
 - requests for any exemption from requirement(s) under the FSC Standard(s);
 - disclosure by FSC Members of any non-compliance with the Standards;
 - complaints brought to FSC's attention against FSC Members, or any non-compliance with FSC Standards; and
 - any appropriate response which may include disciplinary action in the case of breaches of FSC Standards.

FSC Standards – Member compliance

Between July and September every year, the Boards of Full Member companies are required to adopt a resolution:

- that they are satisfied they have complied with the FSC Standards for the previous financial year;
- that states where they have not complied and confirm the exemptions that have been granted by FSC in this regard; and
- that confirms the Standards not applicable to their business, and lodge signed documents confirming the above with FSC by 30 September.

The SODC considers all such Member related issues on an anonymous basis.
